

Assistant Director of Development, Social Sciences
University of California, Santa Cruz

Join the Social Sciences development team at UC Santa Cruz!

Take your inspiration from one of the most beautiful campuses in the world. Use your fundraising abilities to advance an extraordinary student experience, high-impact research, and UCSC's enduring leadership in social and environmental responsibility.

The right person will have development experience and be ready to start working with donors and prospects across multiple disciplines. He or she will use a variety of means to secure and increase philanthropic support from individuals, corporations, and foundations, using planning and creativity to maintain and build relationships with university supporters.

Experience in higher education preferred; an environmental background would be ideal. Salary commensurate with experience.

The position is posted at two levels. Please apply for the one you feel fits you best. Full descriptions can be found at <http://apptrkr.com/967362>. #1606646 – Associate Director of Development and #1606645 – Assistant Director of Development.

Position open until filled. First review will begin no later than February 27, 2017.

Join us as we work to create a more just, healthy, and sustainable world.
Social Sciences at UC Santa Cruz